CASE STUDY

MORE Health Patient Case

San Mateo, CA - Jeff had been suffering from shortness of breath, heart palpitations and nausea for several months. He visited a local cardiologist who diagnosed him with coronary artery disease. Jeff's best chance of preventing a heart attack was to have a stent inserted into one of his arteries.

Jeff activated his MORE Health Employee Benefit, and his case was reviewed by a leading cardiologist, who determined Jeff did not need a stent. Following lifestyle modification Jeff's symptoms disappeared, and he returned to work and did not have to undergo an invasive and expensive procedure and saved his employer up to $61,184 by avoiding an unnecessary surgery.

Heart Disease is the leading cause of death
